Colourshop is a singer-songwriter one-man band. Italian born, London based, Alfredo Salvati moved his first steps in the music world at the age of 10. He took his chances 10 years ago when he moved from Rome hills to London.

Drawing on influences from the folky harmonies of Neil Young to the honest storytelling of Tracy Chapman, and mixing these with cinematic pedal effects, Colourshop is creating a sound that blends masterfully gentle guitar, melody and rhyme into a soundtrack of poignant millennial longing.

In 2014 his song "You & Me" has been pitched and aired by Mark Forrest on BBC Introducing.

Colourshop has recently released his last single "Let me show you how". The song has been recorded at Aclam Records (Barcelona) with Jason Boshoff (Lisa Hannigan, Bastille, Josh Groban).

Overall Colourshop music has overcome 3 million streams only on Spotify platform.

Colourshop is set to release a collection of new singles throughout 2019 and in March 2019 he has played at the Kronplatz Ski & Music Festival supporting Tom Walker European tour.
